Small dreams. Strange worlds. Ultra-modern longing.

Yesterday' s Tomorrow

We look back on our favorite day from school: Science Day.

The thrill of spending the entire day building a model aircraft, the flutter of excitement just before its first flight. The quiet tension of soldering a radio circuit board, tightening the final screw and hoping it would work. The admiration we felt watching friends compete in the science kit assembly contest, and the utopian future we once painted with watercolor.

This collection is inspired by those childhood dreams, when we dared to believe in the impossible and chased romantic ideals, reimagined through fractals, emotional robots, modular assembly, and sleek streamline forms.
